

Post-Op Instructions for Root Canal Treatment

- Root Canal Treatment is necessary when a tooth is extremely sensitive and the dentist makes a diagnosis that there is an infection / abscess in the tooth or in the direct surrounding area of the tooth.
- The first stage will be to relief pain and to clear up the infection.
- It is important that the above treatment is followed by a second appointment to complete the Root Canal Treatment.
- After the completion of the Root Canal Treatment, a restoration should be placed to seal the remaining part of the tooth.
- A Crown and post on the tooth will be the recommended restoration in the long term.
